There was some good news for Republicans and President Donald Trump when the U.S. Commerce Department on Monday published the final version of a tax plan Republicans hope will support an economic revival ahead of the November congressional elections. U.S. President Donald Trump listens during a round table meeting with members of the U.S. military in Ohio in Columbus, Ohio, U.S. July 25, 2018. REUTERS/Jonathan Ernst But it looks increasingly unlikely, even with Trump urging lawmakers this weekend to get to work, that Congress will pass the sweeping tax overhaul. Republican leaders have not released details on how the legislation will affect individual U.S. taxpayers,
